Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

The flat fee proposal that would shift how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund from the responsibility of big corporations is another attempt by government to favor the wealthy over working people. The big corporate long distance carriers already hold so much influence over congress that they've managed to write legislations allowing them to avoid paying income taxes and now they're trying to evade paying their fair share again.

As 50-something Americans we are careful with our spending and make few long distance calls, unlike businesses who make many. I urge you to reject the flat fee proposal you are considering. It's simply unfair and another form of corporate welfare. Don't sell out to the corporate lobbyists. This is a matter of values.

Sincerely,

Glenda Nau
